

©2016 GUAM PUBLICATIONS, INC.
VOL. 48 NO. 120

Hafa Adai,
It's Tuesday

TRACK AND FIELD STARS TO COMPETE
SEE STORY, PAGE 32

FESTPAC CONTINUES TO WOW
SEE STORY, PAGE 2

FestPac Countdown

4

Days left to enjoy the Festival of Pacific Arts

GUAM'S COMPLETE SOURCE

Vote and comment on today's poll.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

Have you attended any FestPac
events?

Results from yesterday's PDN poll
are on PAGE 2.

A SPECIAL REPORT

APURON ACCUSED AGAIN

*"My son would just say,
'Am I the devil's son?'"*

– Doris Concepcion

Mother: Son,
now dead,
molested in '70s

HAIDEE V. EUGENIO
HEUGENIO@GUAMPDN.COM

An Agat youth who served as an altar boy in the village church was molested in the late 1970s by Father Anthony Apuron, according to his mother, Doris Concepcion, who said her son, Joseph A. Quinata, revealed his secret shortly before he died 11 years ago.

Concepcion is the latest person to accuse Apuron, who is now the island's archbishop, of sexually assaulting a child under his care. Concepcion said she decided to come forward after another former Agat altar boy, Roy Quintanilla, on May 17 said Apuron molested him during a sleepover at Apuron's home in the 1970s.

Apuron has denied Quintanilla's allegation. The Archdiocese of Agaña has also denied the allegation by Concepcion.

See MOTHER, Page 4

Apuron

COURTESY OF
DORIS CONCEPCION
Above: Joseph
A. Quinata, as a child in Guam.

PDN FILE PHOTO
Right: Our Lady
of Mount Carmel Church, Agat, as photographed in 1975.

A SPECIAL REPORT

MOTHER: WANTS APURON TO TELL THE TRUTH

Continued from Page 1

When asked about the newest accusation, the archdiocese provided the following written response.

"In the past days, malicious and calumnious accusations against the Archbishop have surfaced, even from a deceased person," Father Adrian L.F. Cristobal, Chancellor of the Archdiocese of Agana, said in a statement. "The Archbishop strongly denies this accusation as he had done so before."

Cristobal added that "Archbishop Anthony urges the faithful not to be afraid, to stand for the truth and he asks for continued prayers."

Concepcion, who now lives in Prescott, Arizona, said she saw Quintanilla accuse Apuron on the Pacific Daily News' website.

"There was Roy, and it's like, I have to do something. I have to step up and let them know what's going on here," Concepcion said.

Her family has been and still is devoutly Catholic, Concepcion said, but her son started to act out, sometimes violently, when he was an altar boy in Agat.

"My son tried to stab (Apuron), attack him, and tried to burn the priest's house down, and I would punish my son," Concepcion said. "(My son) would just say, 'Am I the devil's son, mom? Am I that bad?' And he kept repeating Doris Yamashita Concepcion holds a photograph of her son Joseph Anthony Quinata at her home in Prescott, Ariz., on May 26. Doris alleges that her son was molested by Archbishop Anthony Apuron when he was an altar boy in Guam some forty years ago. Quinata told Doris about being molested by Apuron just before he went into surgery for intestinal perforation in 2005. He did not survive the surgery. Quinata was 38 when he died. » See video online at www.GuamPDN.com.

that to me."

She said her son, whose nicknames were "Sonny" and "Chico," often talked about committing suicide and started to tell people he was Jewish. As an adult, he became addicted to drugs and would disappear for long periods of time, she said.

Concepcion said she is very close to Roy Quintanilla's family, and they used to live down the street from each other in Agat. Her son, who died at the age of 38, was several years younger than Quintanilla, she said.

"I didn't know (about the molestation) until my son was 38 years old when he passed away, and that's when I found out," Concepcion said. "And he was molested and I was giving the priest, giving him permission to do it to my son. He was so afraid to tell me."

Concepcion said she trusted Apuron at the time and believed in his every word.

"(Apuron) would ask me if he can have Sonny, because Sonny would do this and that, and he needs help around the rectory," Concepcion said. "And then he wants Sonny to spend the night with him so they can go and do something for the church, and he needed help. Sonny would retaliate, and say, 'No, mama, I don't wanna go,' and I would punish him. No, you have to go, because Father Apuron needs help."

Concepcion said her son told her about being molested just as he was being taken into surgery in May 2005. He did not survive the procedure.

"He said, 'Mom, I know I'm not the devil's son.' I said, 'No, you're not'. And he said, 'Come closer to me Mama, give me a hug.' And I did," Concepcion said. "And he said, 'Mom, I was molested by Father Apuron.' And I said, 'Who?' He said, 'Remember the priest in Agat? He molested me when I was an altar boy.' And my heart just dropped, because he was dying. I didn't even know."

She never spoke to her son again.

"I have no reason to not to believe my son," she said.

Concepcion said she kept her son's words to herself for 11 years, and said, "It was destroying me."

"I want the people in Guam to know that it is happening in our backyard. Please listen to your children. Don't sweep it under the carpet, because that's what's been going on. We were not allowed back then to say anything derogatory about the priest. We took the priest's word for everything, and little did I know that they were doing this to our children. That's the message I want to be heard," Concepcion said.

Concepcion said she's not asking Apuron to step down or stay in his position.

"That's his decision," she said. "All I want is for him, if he has a conscience, to admit the truth and do what's best for the people. That's what I want him to do, but I don't think he ever will. But that is my message for him."

Flags honor those who died in WWII

FRANK SAN NICOLAS/PDN

More than 3,000 U.S. and Guam flags were displayed during Memorial Day weekend on the grassy grounds of the War in the Pacific National Historical Park in Asan. The flags were meant to honor U.S. military members and Guam residents who died on the island during World War II. On Sunday, the park held a flag ceremony in which the Southern High School JROTC Color Guard participated.

Photos Online

For more photos, go to www.GuamPDN.com.

